The first section of the article introduces and discusses neural network models of sensory and motor behavior. Models of associative learning and plasticity are then given. A motor model is described which was able to reproduce some experimental data on rhesus monkeys who made saccades to visual targets. Finally, the authors discuss the evolutionary origins of intelligence. In the discussion, the authors suggest that, perhaps, sensorimotor behavior is an important substrate in the development of neural networks for higher cognitive processes. The ongoing construction work to lay the foundation for the new Mt. Pleasant city hall has not only reshaped the downtown area, it has left a hole in the front of the old Rhonda Ruppel Memorial Library building. City officials have been gathering ideas on what to do with the space but have only recently begun to discuss a plan. City Hall was built in 1929 and is one of the city's oldest buildings, but it does not have a lot of architectural flair. There are no special features on the building, just a brick facade. Article continues below... The city plans to use some money from an $8 million fund it raised for the project to pay for a new 80-seat movie theater called the C.E. and Sons movie theater. The city did not say when that groundbreaking will take place, but Mayor Kevin McLaughlin said if the city can't find a community partner to build and operate the theater, the city will.
