What's New In HDR Image Tools?

HDR Image Tools is a software for editing and converting HDR files. It uses the Radiance HDR interchange format (available for free download in addition to other formats) that allows you to create, convert and modify any HDR image, as well as compare and convert any HDR image using various parameters. The program also includes a built-in Tone Map function that lets you adjust the exposure and gamma of images, as well as perform Reinhard02 global and local tone mapping. It is not possible to install an application, which is licensed to use Java, on top of a version of Windows that does not support Java. Therefore, the installer needs to be replaced by the latest version of the installer.
