Glenoid Bone Stock and Version: A Practical Guide for a Radiologist on How toÂ .Farmers Market Seasonal Crunch The stores in this quarter and region have limited supply. Contrary to popular belief, we have had a long, hot summer. So the fall/winter season has really started. Here in the South, we like to cook in the fall and winter, and our food stores are what we need in our kitchens. I have a few farmers markets in my area that start up when the weather turns cooler. And they run for 3-4 weeks. We don't have a huge selection of fresh produce here, but we have the demand to have a full green cart. It makes me feel as if I have the world at my fingertips. An entire season of low prices and sweet bargain finds is something to look forward to. I love being able to take advantage of all the produce we have so much of. This weekend I had a couple of great finds at my market. A bag of apples was just $6.30, and a bag of baby bellas were $2.75. They were the last of the season and I snatched them up. As much as I love the convenience of fresh farmer's market produce, I love the pleasure of discovering a cucumber that was grown right outside my backdoor. Tucking it into my salad, and meeting my grocer as he dropped off what he grew that day. I'm getting a kick out of that. I had my manager pick up one giant package of brussel sprouts for $2.75. I added those to my salad, and they had a bite for dessert. We'll be featuring more of those in the days ahead. And this week we have some very 1cdb36666d
