torture program. The Senate Intelligence Committee did hold an additional hearing into the CIA's detention and interrogation program, after the first was abruptly canceled last week after it was revealed Haspel oversaw the secret prison in Thailand, where an estimated 9 al Qaeda suspects were waterboarded. However, the GOP-led panel extended the hearing to Nov. 20, after Haspel's attorney, Bill Burck, asked for more time to review the CIA's addendum of the 2015 Justice Department memorandum that justified the program. Burck argued that his client has already been subjected to five interviews and a 27-hour briefing on the program. "And despite that, we still have questions about her ability to perform her current and future duties," he said. Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., pushed back, arguing that the panel is not the right venue to talk about intelligence and that it was now important to talk about the "facts of the matter," particularly about Haspel's role in the program. "We continue to be considering in a committee setting whether or not she is the right person to be the director of this particular agency," she said. In addition to Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman Richard Burr, R-N.C., and Feinstein, the committee's vice chairman, Sen. Mark Warner, D-Va., and its ranking member, Sen. Saxby Chambliss, R-Ga., also attended the second hearing. During the first hearing last week, Feinstein said that Haspel had not been truthful in her answers to questions she had been asked before the committee in her 2015 confirmation hearing to become deputy director of the CIA. However, Burr said that he "took comfort" in Haspel's "firm commitment" to upholding the law and U.S. obligations under c9d1549cdd

What's new:

Fodder, For Your Pleasure Menu Through the Eyes of a Creature Ate My Children It's been so long since I've waded into the world of RPG (Role Playing Game) systems from my days of playing D&D (Derren Brown DM) and AD&D (Derren Brown Players). Old school I know. But I've been finding a lot of good stuff, and want to spread the good word, so I've decided to review Xul & Cody's Fate, and the first of their 3 Ebooks. If you're starting out with RPG systems, or are relatively new to the RPG, or even if you're in the business of running or playing RPGs, this is a must read for you. So without further ado, let's get on with the 'reviewy part'. This is but a small chunk of this tiny gem, so sit down and give it some attention, I promise it'll reward you. Ok, it might reward me too. But that's really beside the point. When I got this one from Amazon, I was quite taken with the cover (gorgeous mind you) and backstory of Xul & Cody themselves. I like the story. I like the characters. And the characters can partake in game play using the Fate Core Game Rules. Basically if you've already played Savage Worlds, you're going to be familiar with a lot of this. It's an easy transition for new players who want to play in a much more Fate/RPG atmosphere. Overview Xul & Cody's Fate is split into two books. The first one contains the Fate ruleset. The second contains two mini-stories (and a third to come) that anyone playing in a metagame (Iron Empires Run) environment (or the likes) can utilise for play. That means two books and a corresponding two different rulesets (or three for electronic formats). The Fate Core Rules can be picked up and used with either book. There's not a lot to say here really. If you want you can go to Xul & Cody's Website for more detail. Levels Xul & Cody want to be clear that this is meant for old school characters. With that being said there is a scale based on how 'powerful'

Q: Get a list of all SQL Server instances that run on a machine I would like to find the list of SQL Server instances that run on a machine. I'm a Mac user. And I would like to include Services in the list. I tried the following command: `net start "SQLServer"` Please note that this output is too long. It also includes SQL Server Browser which is not listed in the list I need. Can anyone help me to do this? A: There is no built-in tool for this. Here are some options: What about using PowerShell, it has a Server Object Explorer. Execute `Get-SqlServerInstance`. Or look at this automation script.
