A New Age of Sky Pirates is an action-platformer featuring 4-player co-op online multiplayer. It combines the open-ended exploration and fast-paced combat of Rogue-Likes with the teamwork and RPG systems of a traditional top-down RPG like Diablo. In a world where No Man's Sky was released last year, we were excited to launch a game in the genre. However, we did so with some unique challenges to overcome, as we wanted to provide a brand new experience that made you feel like you were playing a game like Diablo 3. But for this to work, we had to create a very different kind of game than what's been done before. The way we approached those challenges is by building on techniques from Valve's Source game engine. We use a dynamic lighting model which allows for rich, volumetric lighting in complex 3D scenes. This means you can see a detailed image of the environment as you play, and yet, when characters move, any shadows fall on to the ground which blends into the background seamlessly. We've adopted a modeling technique for character skins which means that your characters' appearance changes in real-time. This means you can slip into a full-face helm as you enter battle, or change your build as you progress through your adventure. We wanted to have as little restriction as possible on where you can go in the environment, so we built a grid-based building system which lets you place and scale buildings and props that expand and contract to fill available space. We have a larger-than-life RPG system where you can interact with NPCs and receive quests. And because there are so many interesting monsters in the game, we added behaviors to our enemies that mean even during combat, they will climb ladders or run around, giving you a more dynamic gameplay experience. We tested A New Age of Sky Pirates with over 75 different gamers, and everyone enjoyed our game design and gameplay. From top enthusiasts of the genre, to non-gamers, to hardcore gamers. We were super-excited with how our game came out, and the player reception was incredible. But as happy as we were with the end result, our plan with A New Age of Sky Pirates was to have people play and experience our game, then when we ship, we'd work on a patch to turn it into a new experience so everyone can enjoy the game they've never experienced before. Underworld Dreams (Chinese: 无间道; Pinyin: Zūwǎng de mèng) is a fantasy-horror novel by Hong Kong writer Louis Cha. It was serialized online from March to April 2015 and published in Hong Kong by the well-known Chinese publisher Shu Xing Publishing Group in book form in May 2015. Underworld Dreams was the first novel published by Shu Xing since the company went bankrupt in 2012 and it was also Cha's first novel to be translated into English. The novel tells the story of Chor Lau-Hing, a would-be thief who must deal with warring biker gangs, government corruption, deals with antagonists, and political power while working undercover as a madam. Featuring a mix of mythological creatures and voodoo spirits as well as a cynical sense of humor, the story focuses on the various tragic and comedic events that unfold around Chor Lau-Hing's life. Background and publication Underworld Dreams was first published in serialization on various Hong Kong internet platforms, including HK Magazine, before being incorporated into its edition number 42. It is the first novel that Louis Cha has written and the first English-translated novel by Shu Xing Publishing Group in three years. The novel was published in print form in May 2015 in Hong Kong, with an estimated 5,000 copies printed. A Chinese translation was released in August 2018. Plot summary The novel opens with an underground fight club in which two young men fight in a ring while music plays and bouncers watch. The first-place fighter, Jim, is denied a pizza delivery because he does not have his ID. A mysterious man named Carl subtly questions Jim. His defeat is followed by an agent and his then-girlfriend, Jim's teammate Kelly, who leaves the fight club. As she departs, the agent tells Jim that he was there investigating an underground network of one-upmanship among bikers, called "Duoduo", which linked the fight club up with their rivals, "Keone", until the rival gangs engaged in an underground bet, killing members from their respective teams. The agent offers to protect Jim while the agent and the girlfriend speak. Without the agent's knowledge, Jim delivers pizza to the biker clubhouse, but two members recognize him and beat him in the alley. Jim returns to the man with the girlfriend, where he finds out that her husband was killed, and she abruptly leaves him
