Official site. For Honor is a hand-to-hand combat game from Ubisoft featuring Vikings, Knights and more. Samurai, available now on PS4, Xbox One & PC! The new trailer promises "amazing battles in the Viking Age in a new action game." "For Honor" is a game in which we fight as a team with two other players. We fight the enemy in hand-to-hand combat. We are able to use both weapons and armor because we share our team. Each of us has our own specialization: knight, warrior, samurai, etc. Each of the specializations allows us to beat the enemy with unique weapons and unique armor.

The Honor System Is Great In For Honor, But Its Poor. Adam Jones is, of course, a member of the Steelers. He appears to be every bit of the class act he is, so perhaps the best news of all was when he told PFT Live this morning that he's excited about Sunday's matchup with the Vikings, even though it'll be at Heinz Field. He said he actually pays more attention to the Vikings-Colts game than he does to the Steelers-Vikings, as he expects the crowd to be split between the two teams. That would be a great result for both Jones and the NFL. "I actually do pay more attention to that than I do to Sunday," Jones said. "I enjoy the game of football. I enjoy the matchup between the NFL game we play this weekend and the NFL game we played last weekend. This is what I'm most excited about this weekend. "I do spend a lot of time on the field watching tape of the Minnesota Vikings. We know what they're going to bring and we know how they like to play, so it's going to be a good challenge to go in and play against them. It's going to be a good test for our team as well as our defense to go out and see what they can do." His team isn't picking up a lot of the slack, though. The Steelers haven't scored a touchdown in their last four games. There were more than a few mixed reactions to the end of Sunday's loss to the Ravens, but Jones suggested those who suggested the team couldn't take down Baltimore were forgetting about the passing game. "It's not that they're giving up the rushing yards, but they're not running the football as efficiently as they should," Jones said. "The screen game was good. Antonio Brown is off the charts. Now you got two of the best ball carriers
