So, where it says: `filePath = GetDirectory(LOCAL_PATH); while (filePath!= null)` This checks to see if the path is not null before doing the next line. Since the path to the file cannot be null, you get the `FileNotFoundException` exception. Change it so that it reads as: `while(!filePath.isDirectory()) filePath = GetDirectory(LOCAL_PATH);` Read up on Java exception handling. An old guy and three teenagers get separated while crossing a stream. The old guy watches as his friends disappear into the fog. Later, his son is also missing. The old man searches frantically across the lake in the late afternoon until his son comes up to him on the bank of the stream and blames him for their loss. The old man returns to his boat, but his son feels guilty, so the old man stays, and tells the old man: From about 80-100m from the beach, this is what you should see: You can see the watercolours in the ripples on the water, the rope swing hanging like a spider from the branch, the black tee and the black trunks of the pine trees, the small red colour change in the various colours of the cliff on the left, and the top part of the huge rock with the yellow coloured river marks on it to its right. Try to keep your eyes peeled for the reds, blues, and purples that can be seen in the ripples in the water. From the top of the boulders, including the one on the right of the tree, you can get a great panoramic view across the lake to the point on the other side. You can see the mist that is getting thicker all the time, and, of course, if you're lucky you'll get to see the sun for a while. To get there, go on a sunny day, to the main road at Shinjuku, and take the Eitaijou bus from stop No. 20. When you get to Shinjuku station, get c6a93da74d
