Let's face it. At the end of the day, your job is to help the client overcome many obstacles and solve problems in complex circumstances. One of the most common problems that designers encounter is the "Aha!" moment when the client has a problem that's so simple that it's embarrassing not to solve on time. Let's all take a moment to glance at our iPhone, and think about how easy it would be to move a photo around on a large canvas. Or, let's say we're working on a complex brochure with lots of text that needs to be trimmed down and are frustrated that we can't automatically do it. The possibilities are endless but the problems begin to creep in when the first versions of the design come back. Once face validity of the first versions is low, almost as soon as the client snaps back a response of "It looks fine," any design effort becomes almost impossible to scale and adjust to later version changes. An example is the client might change a page to a new background color, so all of a sudden, this section looks completely different. But the good news is any design team can run down those lengthy and challenging problems using the newest capabilities in Photoshop. Adobe rolled out a new Filters workspace and selection tools in the latest release, Creative Cloud 2017. The new Filters workspace includes a selection tool powered by Adobe Sensei, which uses machine learning to make simple selections sharper and more informative. The tool is available to all users, and you can access it by going to View > Toolbox or pressing the Command-L keyboard shortcut, and creating a new Template-Based Selection document. Both one-click and multi-selection functionality will ship for designers in August 2017. The latest update to the Filters workspace also includes the ability to quickly swap between channels in a live image, such as overpainting green into gray areas of an image. Place the Red, Green, and Blue channels by pressing Command-1, 2, and 3 in the Filters workspace, then quickly swap to an out-of-gamut channel by pressing the Command-4 keyboard shortcut. This is a great way to easily create custom photo filters - like a GIF with a vintage look.
