Maison Porno with a horny Asian girl pleasing herself while she's horny and alone at home. Mio first time," she writes at the top of the short video, which featured a lascivious moan. She spoke softly, urging him on, and her captivated audience immediately understood what they were watching. "The hottest Japanese porno amateur session I've ever seen," commented one follower, while another was reported to have sent her a kind message: "I'm so glad you did this video. JAPON 2: Mio chutai, tous les plaisirs [Moutai jippon] JAPON 2: Mio Nude, Machi no jidai tokudai Shitai [Jidai=Japanese (Time)|Tokudai=Life (Time)] [Look at the future]. Reruns of famous Japanese TV host/hostess programs include "Zatoichi" and "Stand Up!!". All these were dubbed in English on the VHS tape, as footage of famous foreigners like Howard Cosell and Jim Gray regularly passed for Japanese TV. It was the blossoming Japanese sex genre that the first cable channel (yuppie) would later transform into one of the best-known media genres. The first edition of "Japan Club" arrived in 1980 with as its theme song the "Music of Sex" by Japanese rock band Nippon Crown. Among the new faces in the magazine were singers such as of former band of P.C.P.P. founder Shunichi Tokura, "The Garden of Gologic Carnage". Several videos were available on VHS and most of them were sent to subscribers as regular mail. If "Japan Club" became the world's first dedicated adult video magazine, the first adult video market found in Japanese was a warehouse in Katsushika at the Horimaya Salon (close to Ueno Park) on September 21, 1982, which sold VHS tapes but had two additional aspects: besides tapes of sex genre, it also sold Japanese soft drinks. The video (Neko no uchi no musume, "The Cat in the House") was actually an obvious parody of "Love Hotel" but sex was still a part of the plot. In his book on Japanese popular culture, Helmut Dietrich writes that Japan Club "was an important milestone in the development of the videotape business in Japan.". "Japan Club" contained sex videos from some of the
