('Acad.by.Giz').Q: What is the easiest way to split a string of text into an array of strings by each space, and concatenate them to one space separated string? If I have a string: `var str = "This is a string";` I would like to split it into an array by each space: `var arr = "This is a string".split(" ");` I would like the output to be the following: `arr = ["This", "is", "a", "string"]` And then I would like to concatenate them back to one string: `var result = arr.join(" ");` Which should give me the following: `result = "This is a string"` But the result is `"This " + "is " + "a " + "string"` A: Here's a simple approach, with just a few function calls: `var str = "This is a string".split(" "); var result = str.join("");` This will perform the split and join with `+` " " (which is a "concatenation") to produce the final result. You can also use `Array.prototype.join` with a string (specifying the delimiter, " " in this case): `var arr = str.split(" ");`

`var result = arr.join(" ");` Check out the differences in this fiddle: A: Use a regular expression (see @Zachary's comment), as well as `String.prototype.split()`: `var str = "This is a string";`
`var split = str.split(" ");`
`var result = "";`
`split.forEach(function(word) { result += word; });`
This can be done in a more concise way with the `Array.prototype.map()` method: `var result = ""` `"".concat.apply("", [].map.call(str`
