Like any medium, painting requires a certain level of skill, experience, and education to be mastered. What are some of the misconceptions about art? One is that all artists are above average or even great. You don't need to be a professional to be good. In fact, as an artist you can get better with practice. I would even go so far as to say that I am not good at being an artist, but I am definitely improving. Another misconception is that art is a solitary activity. I will go on to say that too, that it's more communal in nature than some people are willing to admit. Can you describe your studio space and methods? My studio has a distinctive feature: it is comprised of three corners. Two of them are used for storage and the other corner is my painting area. On one side I have an industrial shelving unit that I have kept for about 10 years. I try to do the most of it in black and white to make the backgrounds stand out. I also use a variety of mediums. I use just about everything including acrylic, oil, watercolors, pencils
